How Do INEDs Discharge Their Duties?

We all know that the directors, as the governing body of a company, are jointly accountable in respect of the company's affairs. The INEDs are no exception to this general principle. However, it is also true that the INEDs are not involved in the day-to-day operations and may not be adequately informed of the company's affairs or activities. In many cases, their involvement or participation in the company's management are limited to attending board meetings and make decisions there and then. The question then arises is that, if the board is found negligent, whether by way of an act or omission, will an "innocent" INED share the same extent of responsibility as the other executive directors? On a more positive note, what INEDs should do to help keeping the board on the right track and fixing the problems?

Seminar Outlines:

- Liabilities of INEDs
- Advice for INEDs to Protect Themselves
- Practical Cases Analysis with Underlying Principles
